

MARKETS

BUSINESS

INVESTING

TECH

POLITICS

CNBC TV

INVESTING CLUB

PRO

Mini VIX Futures
Contracts
Now Trading

Trade Your View on Market Volatility

Add Portfolio
Diversification

Help Hedge Sudden
Market Downturns

Demystifying the Volatility Marketplace

Download Now

TECH

NASA is launching a 4G mobile network on the moon

PUBLISHED MON, OCT 19 2020-9:43 AM EDT | UPDATED MON, OCT 19 2020-2:27 PM EDT

Ryan Browne
@RYAN_BROWNE_

SHARE

KEY POINTS

- NASA has granted Nokia $14.1 million to build the first-ever 4G mobile network on the moon.
- Under its Artemis program, NASA plans to send astronauts and a “sustainable” human presence to the moon by 2028.
- Nokia’s 4G network will allow astronauts to carry out a number of activities including making voice and video calls.

Shark Tank

WATCH LIVE

UP NEXT | Shepard Smith 12:00 am ET

Listen

THE EPIC CONCLUSION
OF THE JURASSIC ERA

